

SPIDERFOLK

SPIDERFOLK IS A MONSTER SUPPLEMENT FOR 5E THAT PRESENTS SPIDER-LIKE HUMANOIDS AS ORGANIZED BROOD PREDATORS rather than simple beasts or oversized vermin. These creatures build layered cavern nests of silk and stone, establishing vertical hunting grounds where walls, ceilings, and webbing are as important as the ground itself.

The intent of this product is mechanical clarity and encounter variety without CR inflation. The ladder progresses from hatchling brood members through increasingly specialized hunters and web-architects, culminating in a matriarch that commands and shapes the entire nest. These spiderfolk are not mindless monsters. They are coordinated predators whose battlefield control emerges from web placement, vertical movement, and patient ambush.

Spiderfolk encounters emphasize terrain manipulation, restraint, and positional pressure. Webbing divides battlefields, ceilings become ambush points, and restrained prey quickly becomes isolated prey. Parties facing spiderfolk quickly learn that standing still or clustering together is dangerous inside a web domain.

Cultural lore and origin are intentionally minimal. Spiderfolk may be ancient cavern dwellers, cursed humanoids, or a fully independent subterranean species. Their motivations are simple and universal: defend the brood, maintain the web, and feed the colony.
