

TREANTS – THREE SPECIES

WE PRESENT THREE NEW TREANT LINEAGES. OAK Treants, Willow Treants, and Cactus Treants.

Treants – Three Species is a monster supplement for 5e that presents treants not as solitary forest curiosities, but as dominant ecological authorities shaped by species, climate, and age. Instead of relying on a single treant stat block, this book provides three distinct and escalating ladders: deep-rooted forest sovereigns, mist-veiled river manipulators, and desert-forged thornbound sentinels.

These are not elemental variants. They are biological lineages.

The intent of this product is environmental dominance and evolutionary expression. Oak treants represent authority, endurance, and territorial anchoring. Willow treants represent control, isolation, and the shaping of movement through water and mist. Cactus treants represent survival through punishment, adaptation to extremes, and the weaponization of harsh terrain. Each ladder escalates not simply in size or damage, but in presence, influence, and ecological control.

Geography, alliances, and rivalries are intentionally undefined. These treants can represent ancient forest courts, haunted river kingdoms, or desert dominions that reshape dunes and stone through patient growth. They are not meant to replace the traditional treant—they are divergent expressions of what a treant becomes when shaped by different climates and survival pressures.

Whether these lineages cooperate, compete, war across ecosystems, or view younger forests as naive is left entirely in the GM's hands.

OAK TREANTS

Oak treants are the sovereigns of deep forests. Broad-trunked and thick-barked, they anchor territory through immovability and force. Their presence reshapes soil, strengthens surrounding plant life, and locks enemies into battles they cannot easily escape.

They are deliberate, judicial, and territorial. They do not chase. They endure. Combat begins not with a charge, but with the ground itself rebelling against intruders.

Oak treants are designed for:

- Ancient forest strongholds
- Territorial boundary encounters
- Defensive, area-control battles
- Campaign arcs involving regional ecological power

WILLOW TREANTS

Willow treants dwell along riverbanks, marshlands, and floodplains. Slender but immense, their long tendrils isolate enemies and drag prey into obscured terrain. Where oak dominates ground, willow dominates movement.

They are patient manipulators. They divide, obscure, and reposition rather than overpower. A willow treant rarely confronts a formation head-on—it breaks cohesion first.

Willow treants are designed for:

- Swamp and river encounters
- Fog-heavy battlefields
- Isolation and reposition mechanics
- Psychological or dream-inflected storylines

CACTUS TREANTS

Cactus treants rise from deserts and arid badlands. Armored in spines and sustained by internal reserves, they embody survival in hostile climates. Every strike against them carries consequence.

They are reactive rather than expansive. Where oak roots and willow drags, cactus punishes. The desert around them becomes a weapon—sand, heat, and needle storms reshaping the battlefield.

Cactus treants are designed for:

- Arid wilderness encounters
- Ranged-pressure battles
- High-risk melee engagements
- Environmental attrition scenarios

False Appearance. While this tree remains motionless, it is indistinguishable from an immense ancient oak.

Cataclysmic Rootquake (1/Day). When initiative is rolled, the ground in a 40-foot radius centered on this tree erupts violently. The area becomes difficult terrain for creatures other than this tree. Each creature on the ground in that area must succeed on a DC 18 Strength saving throw or be knocked prone and restrained until the end of its next turn.

Territorial Dominion. The ground in a 60-foot radius centered on this tree is difficult terrain for hostile creatures. While this tree does not move on its turn, it gains resistance to all damage except fire and cannot be pushed, pulled, or knocked prone.

Legendary Resilience (2/Day). If this tree fails a saving throw, it can choose to succeed instead.

ACTIONS

Multiattack. This tree makes three Slam attacks.

Slam. Melee Weapon Attack: +12 to hit, reach 20 ft., one target. Hit: 26 (3d12+8) bludgeoning damage.

LEGENDARY ACTIONS

Legendary Actions (3/Turn). This tree can take 3 legendary actions, choosing from the options below. Only one legendary action option can be used at a time and only at the end of another creature's turn. This tree regains spent legendary actions at the start of its turn.

Root Lash (1 Action). This tree makes one Slam attack.

Grasping Roots (2 Actions). Roots erupt from the ground at a point this tree can see within 40 feet. Each creature in a 15-foot radius of that point must succeed on a DC 18 Strength saving throw or be restrained until the end of its next turn.

Canopy Crush (3 Actions). Each creature within 20 feet of this tree must succeed on a DC 20 Strength saving throw or take 22 (4d10) bludgeoning damage and be knocked prone.

LAIR ACTIONS

On initiative count 20 (losing initiative ties), this tree can take a lair action to cause one of the following effects; this tree can't use the same effect two rounds in a row:

Root Surge. Roots erupt in a 30-foot radius centered on a point this tree can see within 60 feet. The area becomes difficult terrain for creatures other than this tree until initiative count 20 on the next round.

Living Wall. A line of thick roots 30 feet long, 10 feet high, and 5 feet thick rises from the ground within 60 feet of this tree. The wall provides three-quarters cover and lasts until initiative count 20 on the next round.

Canopy Darkening. The area within 60 feet of this tree becomes lightly obscured by falling leaves and shifting branches until initiative count 20 on the next round.

- This tree opens with Cataclysmic Rootquake to immediately destabilize and restrain enemies.
- It remains stationary whenever possible to benefit from Territorial Dominion's resistance.
- It uses lair actions to reshape terrain and isolate intruders before finishing them with Slam attacks.

False Appearance. While this tree remains motionless, it is indistinguishable from a mature willow tree.

Mistfall Awakening (1/Day). When initiative is rolled, a 20-foot-radius cloud of light mist spreads from this tree and heavily obscures the area until the end of this tree's next turn. Each creature of this tree's choice in the area must succeed on a DC 13 Strength saving throw or be pulled up to 15 feet toward this tree.

Flowing Trunk. This tree has advantage on ability checks and saving throws made to resist being grappled or restrained.

ACTIONS

Multiattack. This tree makes two Tendril Lash attacks.

Tendril Lash. Melee Weapon Attack: +5 to hit, reach 15 ft., one target. Hit: 9 (1d12+3) bludgeoning damage, and the target's speed is reduced by 10 feet until the start of this tree's next turn.

- This tree opens with Mistfall Awakening to obscure vision and disrupt formations.
- It pulls enemies into mist or toward water before focusing attacks.
- It favors isolating targets rather than holding a fixed defensive position.

False Appearance. While this tree remains motionless, it is indistinguishable from an ancient desert cactus.

Cataclysmic Spineburst (1/Day). When initiative is rolled, spines detonate in a 30-foot radius centered on this tree. Each creature in that area must succeed on a DC 16 Dexterity saving throw or take 28 (8d6) piercing damage and be knocked prone.

Reactive Spines. When a creature hits this tree with a melee attack while within 15 feet of it, that creature takes 10 (3d6) piercing damage.

Legendary Resilience (1/Day). If this tree fails a saving throw, it can choose to succeed instead.

ACTIONS

Multiattack. This tree makes one Slam attack and two Needle Volley attacks.

Slam. Melee Weapon Attack: +8 to hit, reach 15 ft., one target. Hit: 21 (3d10+6) bludgeoning damage.

Needle Volley. Ranged Weapon Attack: +8 to hit, range 80/240 ft., one target. Hit: 21 (3d10+6) piercing damage.

- This tree opens with Cataclysmic Spineburst to punish clustered enemies immediately.
- It maintains distance using Needle Volley while discouraging melee with Reactive Spines.
- It focuses ranged pressure on prone or isolated targets.
