The Detention Block is not designed for long-term incarceration, rather for short-term holding and transporting of prisoners, or in some cases crew discipline. As such prisoners are expected to remain in their cells at all times.

The Control Room locks, unlocks, and watches all cells and is usually maned by two technicians and some guards.

The Cells are very small. The small bed flips up to reveal bathroom and wash facilities. There is a small foldable table attached to the wall used at meal times. Meal are delivered to the prisoners in their cells.
